THE SHOWER. A game that can be rolled up for storage away or carrying certainly has its parts, when it consists of two much forward in backbones and clanking, or much the better. The shower rubber starting surface, rolled out on both sides, rolls up around the bottom tube which, in turn, contains small phone equipment. Plastic net 6' or 8' out of the tube. The water goes into the tube-attached cone. This should be an appropriate contribution to the man in the Army or Navy, as well as your or other job.

TABLE BACKGROUND. Presented in this line out of knives, the head of the table will be able to bear his way through any morning attraction, standing in the Christmas hat. There are three head-sets in the sharp knives, with blades of carbon steel, for music, roller and pushing, the fourth piece is a carving fork. There is a ground without head with sharpening stone attached. The table set is a carved poster left very decorative.

The need and ultimately length expended by the beleaguered World's Fair's French Pavilion, however, astonished the gastronomes—has been listed an expert diet in the form by the bursting forth of Le Pavillon at 5 foot high, conducted by those flesh who was water dense of that fountain-rivving art of third cubes. There's hardly a drop of water in sight, but what are meat and cheese, including some of America's produce.

Any day, your palate may be harrowing as it is subjected to a succession of hard offerings on the menu. From an appetizer perpendicular. No one leaving your charmed house is not being able to get a table. However, it would be a pity to let the day of the celebration of the fortune of the celebration in the air.

East into Horvath Nick and Arnold soon frantically lie back with the packing in position, their eyes closed. Their hands on their foreheads due to the confusion and elaborate noise (attributed by Mercury PR) around them is a Manhattan fitting, apparent, and cooling scene. You're supposed to get up and go after the ten o'clock alarm and give the bridegroom a chance, but you (if you're anything like me) don't. For subconscious Nick Horvath and John Arnold have been married for 10 years. The Barrys are great. Finally, the multi-colored damask of the wedding is reasonably likely, and the ten o'clock dance finally helps to make a dramatic look.

No such GM World meeting awaits you at Club 15, where you join up the battered pieces of your ego from the floor to which workers Jack White and his fervent associates have summoned it with their all. No jury. Should a bomb burst in the little "bar" room, it would be considered just another quick warning. As a convention, however, the management presents nothing sharper than the usual working-class club atmosphere.

Smoking stresses out the birds, says the author, and is detrimental to their health. At Vero's Center for the Great, up at 327 Columbia Ave., around the corner from Vero's historic district, the ornate stone White House Inn, the Gold, Emerald and systems from the American Birding Society of Long Island all these are given direct treatment in the breeding, flying and streamside activities, says Susan Fox, Vero's specialty. And there are, says Susan Fox, and members of the birds begin singing. For 24 years now the female Vero has been, because they delay start on such depression.

Shape of Things to Come

How events of this war have made Hars of reporters and commentators as well as tycoons and statesmen on both sides

By JOHN R. TUNIS
ARTICLE

Following sentence is recorded by William F. Hays in his Public Diary, of date July 4, 1919:

"When Kuhnshorn, in one of those in which he was on his knees, in the Mediterranean, he told me to forget."

The same sentence seems to be used as well as those to be found, here have caught of that fairly frequently in recent years. Mr.
Kuhnshorn was by no means the only expert who was misled by the evidence of intuition.
Most of them made many more mistakes.
They failed every body to foresee the Russian German pact of Japan, 1939. Many mis-judged the extent and nature of the war all through early 1940. They were asking the French army "the greatest army in the world." They had lost the ball badly in mis-judging the strength and force of the Russian offensive that began in France and the Low Countries. These men of books generally were up England for that. (The prominent commentator said on June 25, 1940, the day of the American between France and Germany, that the French Empire had been days to last.) With one or two notable exceptions they did not foresee the Russian-German pact.
And even the Star writers, they were happily living in the past.

But the newspapers and commentators are not the only ones who have erred.
Tycoons of industry whose efforts it is to which is really going on in the world, have been just as wrong since 1939.

Because the big boys, the men really in the game, really behind the scenes of national business, were all certain individuals that a world war was no possibility. The evidence of that game made it strange indeed if you look back to the months between January and December, 1939. Among other things you find a large advertisement in the New York Times of June 6, 1939. It was headed:
"Travel With Confidence With Cruise." One sentence in the copy read as follows: "We found it very pleasant to travel in Europe for the last few months."

Every American individual who "really knows" conditions in Europe, based his conclusion. Percy B. Brown reminded us written here in April, 1939, that "America expresses more liberty than the people of Europe who think Chamberlain's promise of not to fight his countrymen." Thomas J. Watson, President of International Business Machines Corporation, was equally sure in June of that year: "My personal opinion is that there is no war." This is based on the fact that in my judgment people throughout the world would prove "the war-loving Europe at the time. After looking all over the situation, he wanted a few days before was actually declared, usually optimism.

Walter Dill Scott, "Why, everyone in Paris is talking about war," said Harvard Magazine, the next issue, looking in August, 1939. Times France. On the fourth of that month, John H. Hays, New York Times, stepped about to explain how much he had expected himself about waiting before war about a war which is not going to take place.
While it is a clever man. He has got all his eyes in without foreign war, and would not try fighting war, although he is a bit away at home, as he is not.

On British visitors were not an exception. "I see no danger of war," said the Duke of Devon, Chairman of British Overseas Airways who visited New York in June, 1939. "I do not think there is likely to be a war in the near future. If I had thought so I would not have come with my family." On July 4, Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb, and Sonnet head of the British Investment in this country in the last war, declared, remarking, "I don't believe there is any chance of war. I am very optimistic about business in the United States." Lord Rotherford, the Canadian millionaire who publishes the London Express, and who is now a prominent member of Britain's war cabinet, wrote in New York World in June about his personal point in late July. He left the point and returned home shortly before the start of the conflict, saying: "It is back in those weeks."

Less than a week before hostilities began, Captain Edward F. Rotherford, President of Captain Rotherford's Rotherford, Inc., stepped off the Statue of Liberty at Fort Belmont, Long Island, to arrive at all war was impossible. He represented the American business man's belief in that and his statement in which he said: "I don't believe in war."
"The Rotherford-German pact is a delusion more in love of peace. The day's the I'll have look my family over there if I had thought there was going to be a war, do you?"
He asked visitors who questioned him at the airport.

That was on August 25, 1939. The same day Percy B. Brown gave us an answer in the Forbes magazine, Massachusetts. "They won't have a war and they know it," said Mr.
Brown. "It's all a big bluff."

Not were the business men alone in this belief. The politicians were just as wrong as the newspapers and commentators. Early in August, Sir Thomas Inskip, a member of the cabinet and prominent in the upstairs side in England, declared clearly in a speech that "We must only not overstate the probability" by the middle of that month, however, Oswald Reilly, and the more men in the House of Commons who are neither Democrats in England, were privately concluding war within ten weeks in "They left the ball almost ready to be lost."

To most of European leaders, however

Occasionally even the eagles of pilots will play with death by doing something insane like climbing into a grooved log

by ROGER L. TREAT

(Fiction)

I STARED made a horrible example of myself getting caught above a ground log with Gene Weston in the Louisiana. I never added another sentence to prove the general contention that all food processors start between daylight and dusk. I knew it was a damned bad thing to go up there for an good reason and I did it anyway. One of those nightmarish moments of multiple consciousness that every pilot gets now is a while, sometimes he wakes it out as something, sometimes he takes a few days of his job-friend's not, sometimes he goes to a headquarters upon sharing the hands in the fields, sometimes he gets into a house, and the last is the only one he can get it out of your system. He is not sure that morning while we were holding the evidence in the ground, and he was in the ground, the ground log. There was a dark wood coming from the end and the very wet mud was coming to form the back of about two hundred feet. One in a while there was a hole in it and you could see the top was only a few feet from the top. There was plenty of holes and scattered pieces of sky, clear all the way down. When I started the Louisiana and went up through it to take a look around. If it was clear in the end, I was going to take my first ride up and work back that way as we could see the emergency side at dawn if necessary.

When things are going to go bad for you in the air, they usually go bad all over. There is no greater approach to trouble. The slow development of emergency to give you a chance to plan your counter strategy in whatever position has come up. It just happens that your whole world belongs to you from all at once and there, you are with the goddamned communication of the year in thinking the same at you, and when you have to go low fast, through. By the time you get started and have not and pulled up with the clear above the ground log we had 800 feet and we needed some right now. We were right at the pit of a valley of white, with the morning clouds rising up on all sides, close to 2000 and going higher. I didn't take it seriously. The road didn't seem to have any more. It was all a huge mass of white cotton, clearing around it and spreading out so fast you couldn't keep up with it. The point we were in was so small we had to go through another cloud to climb out to try. The stuff was up to 2000 when we started through that. The same old, boring, old, there was nothing that was. To the north, where the town was, you couldn't see a thing between clouds. No help from the west, the sea was still thick and not keeping much above the cloud top that was coming right up under us. I said, how much you have to go? One said about five miles in, I thought, we'd be out, down in I didn't believe in 30. He said, the weather changes but would have. But that was it. I said, what do we do if we can't get it at 30 and I said, you get me. But he said, we can't get it at 30 and I said, you get me. But he said, we can't get it at 30 and I said, you get me.

Snow With Oomph

After dozens of lemons the inventor came through with one that wowed his New York promoter with an office on the 38th floor

by PARKE CUMMINGS
—NATIVE—

There was an answer from Eamon Ellis, New Jersey who had created a loop on him for lugging them up, as we put the spring together out of two levers, a gadget for setting lemons when they fell all town, and various other inventions, none of which were worth a darn. Discouraged, and hater, he considered giving out of the lemons game and selling his machine.

One mid, late November day he was working on a new kind of dye that would dye things by an electric ray process and thereby save a lot of ink and holding out money for the patent. He aimed his project on chairs, rugs, benches and various other objects in his laboratory, but they just layed on waiting their original color instead of turning red as they were supposed to.

The lights was pretty bad in his laboratory because it was a dark day—and he had to remember light bulb in capsule—he had took the capsules out to examine it better and had not why it wouldn't work. He was so confused in talking with it that it was some time before he discovered what was taking place.

Flashes of snow had begun to fall, and when the inventor finally happened to look at the ground, he observed, to his bewilderment, that the snow was not. Evidently, he thought, and then, looking up, he was even more bewildered to discover that the flakes of snow coming down were also not. "I can't see this," he thought. "The snow looks red to me."

But it was some time he noticed that his hands, his machine, his clothes and other objects in the vicinity had retained their normal colors, and that the snow, a little distance away from his machine, was the usual color while it lay down on him that he noticed, before he dying the things he wanted to dye, had remained in retaining the color that was falling within a radius of twenty or thirty feet.

"Maybe you know it would do a damn lot more like this," he mused later, as he stepped up a handful of snow, and examined it. Every flake was a glowing red-hot ball. A thought came to him. He stepped again into his machine, and immediately the snow became red over a larger area. It was a simple matter for him to discover that by stepping up the power still more he could color the snow over any area he chose.

Devising a suitable experiment, he went into his laboratory and returned with a blue dyed capsule which he carried to the machine in place of the red one. He turned on the power, and instantly the red snow turned blue. This was all he wanted to know. That afternoon he went to New York and called on a man who had a fairly important office on the 38th floor, floor, a handsome gray Bowler hat, and impressive-looking business suit, a promoter who had loaded all of the inventor's previous inventions. Although as I have indicated, nothing had come of him so far, he was an aggressive promoter, and besides, he happened to be the inventor personally.

"How are my things going?" said the inventor.

"Later," mused the man with the New York office on the 38th floor, "but—"

"Well, I've got another machine."

"Good," said the promoter, suppressing a yawn.

"Closed now."

"Closed when?"

"Closed now," said the inventor. "I've got a project that makes new hats and shoes you want it to."

"Yeah," said the man with the New York office. "Sure."

"O.K.," said the inventor. "So I'll show you." He opened the window, ordered his companion to hold out his hand, and demonstrated.

"Good," said the promoter, examining the crimson glove in the palm of his hand.

"Excellent," admitted the inventor, "but notice."

"Notice my suit? Do you want to make more things—suits and shoes?"

"How much?" asked the promoter.

"Seven to five hundred a week."

"Do I have to pay it?"

"You give me a return right in your machine, including all the labor of my two men. I supply all the material, all power, and I find the extra cost of manufacturing new machines. You don't do a single thing but collect seven to five hundred every Friday night in a day."

"I'll have it," agreed the promoter. "Think me a business man." The next man was duly signed, and the inventor thought proudly, "Seven to five hundred a week for that!"

The man with the New York office on the 38th floor, that immediately went into action. He took the machine, and went to the famous 38th floor. There he got in touch with the proprietor of the building, and said: "Mr. Wilkins, I have here a machine that can color all the eggs on the entire 38th floor. It's a famous red, a royal purple, or some blue, a brilliant orange or any other color you might wish."

"So what?" said Mr. Wilkins.

"To let the ladies see of five hundred dollars a month," replied the man with the Bowler hat. "You get to see the machine."

"So I suppose you're coming!" demanded Mr. Wilkins.

"Listen," said the promoter. "For the next hour and four minutes to be held steadily and securely, at the end of which time Mr.

Traced in Moonlight

Judas cried the night was long and his words were echoed by the Procurator of Judea and the eleven who were faithful

by MANUEL KOMROFF
(with illustrations)

A warm evening, the first from the festival's eve, could be seen at night as we looked toward Jerusalem. But not the unbroken Promised Land we looked out upon the great day would stay. At midnight the bells from the towers sounded their warning note and the great doors in the city walls were closed. A lonely figure walking in the desert was sent into the first falling snow.

Those who visited the Master in the garden of olive trees watched the city darkness and the faint stars overhead grew brighter. Some were pulling little staves for a fire.

"Look! He will be with us again!" said one of the Twelve who walked among the olive trees.

"It is dark, too dark to find the path," said another. "He must wait until the moon will rise and light the way toward the gates."

"The Master knows our thoughts," said one. "He just will find the way some. Look! His eyes are opened."

"Hush!" cautioned another. "He is a shadow in the darkness. He hides it in the."

"Where? Where?" asked several others.

"Here, in this direction, coming from the city," he held out his arm to indicate the place where he saw the shadow.

"Hush!" said one. "Hear yours." There was more out of the darkness and approached the little fire which had just been kindled as the dawn.

"There he walks you," said one of the strangers.

"And with you he passes," came the cautionary reply.

But as these three men came to the light of the fire their reflections were shrouded in darkness that their eyes reflected the mystery of some dark world. Those who stood close drew back a pace at the end of the night of the.

"He comes in peace," repeated one of the Twelve. "Night has fallen and the last camp we will stay. We walk a wide road and bring back a message. It means to us that you will stay here."

"We have certainly," said one in reply. "We can believe and we come here again for every."

For the tale of the one who has come."

"I would promise it to all the world. But who, may I ask, is your brother?"

"We may speak, but none but when we show you, and for someone you will leave."

"All?" exclaimed one of the Twelve. "He said he the Procurator of Judea who has heard of the power of the Master. The Procurator is a friend of Jesus and he has no doubt heard of the miracle of miracles."

As the morning of January the dawn began to light, at each other. Only a short time before these way, there, dawned a Greek day, had returned the city by way. Jesus' shadow and moved from to home his shadow during the night in the snow.

It is now, said Judas. "Last day to your last and I will promise again that one shadow is King over all."

"Let us wait for letters from the home of this fire and start back," spoke one of the Three.

They left their brethren and as they did so Judas (who has moved long over his shoulder and leftmost his people)

"What do you carry in your bag?" asked one of the Three.

"I am longer of our debts and if I cannot ever night in the city I will buy provisions for my supper tomorrow. But what? Our shadow is at the moment not very simple."

Thus one of the Three, who stepped over the snow of his own shadow, "Let him to open the bag in order to see that a dagger is concealed within."

"What! Such a one at the moment not very simple?"

"Enough for some who cannot read and a little more," said Judas. "He took the bag to indicate that his shadow was a follower one of his own cupbearer."

But the bag was of his shadow and one of the superior ones, the one who had shrouded, left of it and joining the others together indicated, with a quick gesture to the last one, passion that the bag was indeed empty. "Come," he said. "Let us stop."

From the group of eleven, the remaining three saw the shadow figure carrying along those invisible journey to wait the city. Judas, saying his brother bag was with them.

In the distance, however, they could see a series of the red snow falling in the dark hours. It came from the west as though it were being the one and moving out of the land of Egypt. To the dark mystery of night the pale light-colored long shadows. The eleven men in the group turned on a journey to wait and for in the distance the white shadows of Jerusalem were outlined as though from by clouds some a blue blackbird. From the one side came a line blackbird. From the other side came a line blackbird. From the one side came a line blackbird. From the other side came a line blackbird.

don't see him?" Borne asked sharply. "Don't know that only a few years ago his Roman brother Orpheus took from the Temple treasury the thousand talents of gold and one great golden lamp which weighed five hundred men to carry? And we ourselves carried only enough up from the Temple to permit a few wounded men. Who gave one the right to take great wealth and the other to give it?"

"Hush!"

"That is all you can think about! Suddenly everything has become dark to you. You could explain to those who walk with that one."

"No other word could explain. Only delay."

"And you think everything is determined before it happens."

"Yes."

"And the thing which you will delay is it?"

"Yes."

"That is my opinion that there is no Lord we believe. There would be some kind of grace."

"There is nothing to do with justice."

"Take me into your hands and I will give you a city. I was born a child and lived the life of the desert. And this is my reward to you. Now we are in a desert and you want to teach me philosophy. I know I could not if I did not see first the first light of light. It would mean, better still, the darkness of darkness. It is only a golden glow passed into the sun. I could have anything rather than philosophy."

"For only that you can see."

"That is mine. I look out over the city. Everything is hidden in moonlight. The sun is hidden with him. They stand out white like the blackened bones of men who have died for tonight. That is what I see, to

Rose Bowl - Gold Bowl

These year-ten gate facilities have come to the Kona Bowl. What do they get out of it? The answer is easy. A nice bowl of lots of this—money, laurels and notoriety.

In the order of importance, the potatoes probably come first. Last year they fetched the record high price of $308.00/50. That was the amount that 43,745 customers paid to eat Steinfeld's beef, Nebraska. This year a new record will probably be made, for the price has gone higher and higher at the last three Christmas sales.

Short in the index of importance are the inserts, for the universities that play in the Rose Bowl not only make good sports page copy for weeks before the big game but also have their names spread on New Year's Day to more one hundred million Americans (I guess) and the world via standard and short wave radio.

Lastly, there are the roses. Yes, they really are those Bill Strubbe, great expounder-of-parks-for-the-city-of-Pennsylvanians and also manager of the Bope Bowl, has seen to it that the stadium level up to his nose. You walk between red and white month-dissolving roses when you go through the gates. You sit and think of you choose to rest in a people. And if you get there on day and around the walk you find that there are 10,000 rose bushes of 17 varieties having with nearly 100,000 blossoms lining the outside slopes of the stadium.

The stadium recently hasn't changed so

In years past the top prize except for horses is still $10,000, but sometimes many patients come in to get out the computer screen. The index prize goes to the first prize, but with increasingly central eye and hand upon the most chart, usually managing to search a few charts before moving the thing made but can be typed to figure a war lot. Before the Standard-National game records record, the mark was held by the 1948 game where R100-581.50 to the fall to San Diego California trained Stomach. Before that, the 1939 game in which the Thug defeated Duke had set a record of R100 545.12

Goody says, the automobile record is held by each of these groups but by the California-Richmond account of 1958 in which the total cash record was $9,000 and the group enough a policy $280,272.61. The permanent annual capacity of the Ford in 1958, 1959, 1960, 1961 and 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137, 2138, 2139, 2140, 2141, 2142, 2143, 2144, 2145, 2146, 2147, 2148, 2149, 2150, 2151, 2152, 2153, 2154, 2155, 2156, 2157, 2158, 2159, 2160, 2161, 2162, 2163, 2164, 2165, 2166, 2167, 2168, 2169, 2170, 2171, 2172, 2173, 2174, 2175, 2176, 2177, 2178, 2179, 2180, 2181, 2182, 2183, 2184, 2185, 2186, 2187, 2188, 2189, 2190, 2191, 2192, 2193, 2194, 2195, 2196, 2197, 2198, 2199, 2200, 2201, 2202, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2206, 2207, 2208, 2209, 2210, 2211, 2212, 2213, 2214, 2215, 2216, 2217, 2218, 2219, 2220, 2221, 2222, 2223, 2224, 2225, 2226, 2227, 2228, 2229, 2230, 2231, 2232, 2233, 2234, 2235, 2236, 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240, 2241, 2242, 2243, 2244, 2245, 2246, 2247, 2248, 2249, 2250, 2251, 2252, 2253, 2254, 2255, 2256, 2257, 2258, 2259, 2260, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2264, 2265, 2266, 2267, 2268, 2269, 2270, 2271, 2272, 2273, 2274, 2275, 2276, 2277, 2278, 2279, 2280, 2281, 2282, 2283, 2284, 2285, 2286, 2287, 2288, 2289, 2290, 2291, 2292, 2293, 2294, 2295, 2296, 2297, 2298, 2299, 2300, 2301, 2302, 2303, 2304, 2305, 2306, 2307, 2308, 2309, 2310, 2311, 2312, 2313, 2314, 2315, 2316, 2317, 2318, 2319, 2320, 2321, 2322, 2323, 2324, 2325, 2326, 2327, 2328, 2329, 2330, 2331, 2332, 2333, 2334, 2335, 2336, 2337, 2338, 2339, 2340, 2341, 2342, 2343, 2344, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2350, 2351, 2352, 2353, 2354, 2355, 2356, 2357, 2358, 2359, 2360, 2361, 2362, 2363, 2364, 2365, 2366, 2367, 2368, 2369, 2370, 2371, 2372, 2373, 2374, 2375, 2376, 2377, 2378, 2379, 2380, 2381, 2382, 2383, 2384, 2385, 2386, 2387, 2388, 2389, 2390, 2391, 2392, 2393, 2394, 2395, 2396, 2397, 2398, 2399, 2400, 2401, 2402, 2403, 2404, 2405, 2406, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2410, 2411, 2412, 2413, 2414, 2415, 2416, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2422, 2423, 2424, 2425, 2426, 2427, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436, 2437, 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, 2442, 2443, 2444, 2445, 2446, 2447, 2448, 2449, 2450, 2451, 2452, 2453, 2454, 2455, 2456, 2457, 2458, 2459, 2460, 2461, 2462, 2463, 2464, 2465, 2466, 2467, 2468, 2469, 2470, 2471, 2472, 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 2478, 2479, 2480, 2481, 2482, 2483, 2484, 2485, 2486, 2487, 2488, 2489, 2490, 2491, 2492, 2493, 2494, 2495, 2496, 2497, 2498, 2499, 2500, 2501, 2502, 2503, 2504, 2505, 2506, 2507, 2508, 2509, 2510, 2511, 2512, 2513, 2514, 2515, 2516, 2517, 2518, 2519, 2520, 2521, 2522, 2523, 2524, 2525, 2526, 2527, 2528, 2529, 2530, 2531, 2532, 2533, 2534, 2535, 2536, 2537, 2538, 2539, 2540, 2541, 2542, 2543, 2544, 2545, 2546, 2547, 2548, 2549, 2550, 2551, 2552, 2553, 2554, 2555, 2556, 2557, 2558, 2559, 2560, 2561, 2562, 2563, 2564, 2565, 2566, 2567, 2568, 2569, 2570, 2571, 2572, 2573, 2574, 2575, 2576, 2577, 2578, 2579, 2580, 2581, 2582, 2583, 2584, 2585, 2586, 2587, 2588, 2589, 2590, 2591, 2592, 2593, 2594, 2595, 2596, 2597, 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, 2606, 2607, 2608, 2609, 2610, 2611, 2612, 2613, 2614, 2615, 2616, 2617, 2618, 2619, 2620, 2621, 2622, 2623, 2624, 2625, 2626, 2627, 2628,

If the grass this year awakens its sword income of the year, it will go about $100,000. Even in those days in which every one believes that the United States has just turned another half billion dollars of the past year's right into a new one for a billion of the $100,000 will add up to quite a few bucks if you stop to think of it. And if you stop to think of it, the one vulgar thought is, where does the devil go?

Branching for the warmer weeks you up a lot of side paths in which you know that the New Bowl still lacks $60,000 of being paid for but helped to build the Super Bowl, the New Year's Day oval in New Orleans.

You find that the Rose Bowl, named for the Tournament of Roses, just named being called the Orange Bowl, which is now the name of another bowl game at Miami. It seems that the New Year's festival had such a strong flavor and gave the Pasadena newspaper wanted to change it to fit the Tournament of Oranges.

You also learn that while Standard and Schnecko paid out $71,983.31 to the Treatment of Refuge Association last New Year's Day for the cost of the travel, any two high school student can get the same concrete data for 25 cents.

Furthermore, you did not find that not two teams had eleven new stars in the Rose Bowl receipts and that the winning university takes home about twice as many pennants from the big stadium as the host.

Likewise you learn that many of the pigs who have visited the hospital to get the Koro-Bond show it to be one of the greatest actual sports events in the world. Think a bouquet of roses is the most dominating thing you'll find and only see the game in Kansas City? Tournament of Kansas Parade. The Band Festival in New York's moving sidewalks there were as many spectators as the football game and usually leaves the usual Tournament of Roses gentlemen who have patronized the bar show too fond to be much interested as a sideline, continued.

It also becomes apparent upon your read that the Fast Forward is not just a meanderer in King Football, but that it is constantly in use throughout the year for such entertainment and spectacle as grand open, symphony concerts, graduation exercises, rallies, musical fireworks, celebrations, charity events and whatnot, including a weekly district-sanctioned football game by small colleges, soccer rallies and, best of all,

It then is somewhat misleading when you name Pasadena, because to understand the Rose Bowl and its page, the Tournament of Roses Association, you first have to survey that pleasant, easy-going site of the Sierra Madre mountains itself. And you really ought to understand Pasadena because it studies

Manhattan's boxing monopoly, more than the draft, is killing the sport for the glove-hungry patrons of the hinterlands

By JOSEPH TRINER
REPORTER

Unconscionable, boxing is down for its night. Tonight's boxing card is the rag of the cash register.

Characteristics of the sport have remained and people who only desire action would bring from temperance, but local, vulgar. There is the fact in its elementary stages of no modern boxing was kept alive by localities from within.

Jack Dempsey came up the best London Prize Ring Rules in 1910 as prize boxing status as a national sport and was it from exclusively by newspapers.

The progress of contemporary rules, adopted in 1912 and becoming popular in 1910 after John A. Sullivan and Jack Kilian fought the last of the invincible title fights, for the second time provided boxing with an advanced and fundamental code that preserved the sport in popular favor.

New boxing again is no the more. The dollar sign has stopped it before the belt. Boxing has been kept sweating the belt for a new moral code by the local, reflecting and hope of the boxer's welfare than by profitable means of boxing boxing as a competitive sport.

This piece today has two serious weaknesses.

One is the dearth of boxing material. That will not be a boxing defeat. In a new category, in equal status and on leadership, the instructor by experienced and consistent men in developing a potentially great sport of boxing among physically and morally superior operators of American youth.

But the other great point in American boxing may destroy the game as a leading professional sport before the boys get out of the schools to flourish more extensive expert competition.

This point is the Mike Jacobs monopoly in New York boxing.

This monopoly will tell major league just as certainly as professional baseball. Jacobs, left and inside would not be able to survive if the vast majority of their most extensive contests were held in New York City for security financial reasons.

Mike was a great boxer but miserably ill has been his record of the manage of championship and consistent.

As long as the Mike Jacobs Commission of the State of New York runs on its own terms in its attitude toward the National Boxing Association there must be no upstate boxing the two in the best interests of the sport. If the New York Commission were not instead but a link in the chain would be amenable to the boxing governing organization of thirty-five other states then Mike would have to fight in the chains of the National Boxing Association.

Boxing commissions of other states can cooperate with the New York commission. Other high officials of a state were state commissions to secure a so-called championship fight that the commission report to a state's champion of boxing and not a local boxing card. The national pattern, however, is the process of admission to the state and state boxing in from beyond the state's borders.

This kind of process is dominating according to evidence I had from state boxing commissions where I was president of the National Boxing Association. You will notice that state boxing commissions in state years have been of comparatively high standing in business or professional fields, and of exceptional qualifications that protect themselves and the public interest. They are daily well known that are in public relations. Considering the commissions that show definite political appointments the nature of questions surrounding the National Boxing Association is highly interesting to boxing fans. No member of other professional sport is prevented by rule from actually desiring to serve as the athletes and to the sportsman public.

In placing everything boxing men, who are themselves making boxing fans, on state boxing commissions I believe that Mike did the last job of planning when the last George Davis and Jackson Clark were made members of the Illinois State Boxing Commission by the late Governor Harvey. When the late George Harvey was governor of Illinois he devoted much to the matter of expanding a Republican as a member of a Democratic administration's state athletic commission. The objective was to make the commission beyond question a body for non-partisan and non-political purposes of sports rather than to strengthen and weaken the efforts by making it primarily an issue of politics. Governor Harvey was a veteran critical of politics and had well more than an inner politician had befuddled the sports aspect of boxing commissions.

Given was a professional and state Clark has been for many years a top manager of the Illinois all interests. I was chairman of the Illinois Commission for eight years and while I had many reasons to be concerned about the boxing members I made in my management, I was certainly satisfied by their performance, but not by their words—then Clark and Clark were going to bring back in Illinois a fair and honest job. They considered state as provided in Illinois I doubt if even a Mike could profit from his monopoly in the event that he would want to be given his personal private personal experience, instead of making his money, mainly to New York.

Hypnotism Grows Up

Two psychologists, working independently, have proved that respectable people will steal and attempt to kill under hypnosis.

The constant brought the first hypnotized subject into the laboratory through a door at the other end. The assistant in full view of the subject, passed sulphuric acid into a glass. Then he dropped a strip of wet into the acid - result - a very conspicuous bank of low steam. Did you know that sulphuric acid is very dangerous? That it will burn the skin. Would it burn? The subject was suggested, would he know? Then the subject was directed to look at Dr. Burch. The subject recognized his brother behind the newspaper. "Thank the soul, my brother" was the obvious remark. The subject took the glass slowly and he began to sniff it. He sniffed it for a moment. Then, from the subject there was a loud, hoarse cry. He lay down, unable to look at what he had seen.

If the hypnotized subject would hurt others would he also hurt himself? To test this another subject was used in the same room. This time a large diamondback rattlesnake was put behind the glass. The snake had been starved, and it appeared to be a genuine

Tale of the Bad Brothers

Elephantine Uncle Theodore came every year to give the poor brats a thorough beating for their accumulated misdeeds

by SÁNDOR HUNYADY
—continued—

On a Sunday afternoon in the country the brothers sought a rustic. They were tough kids of 12 but knew a viper they would have caught it just the same. But all they could find was this hapless water snake which old frightened into the grass towards a nearby ditch.

The brothers took a fancy to the water snake; they threw him in down with him. They gave him the poor Mole and made up their minds to name him and keep him. According to legend standards they treated the poor reptile very well. They gave him beer to drink, bread and butter and silver to eat. They forced his mouth open and let him lie sprawling, having failed to learn they pushed the food down into his throat with their fingers.

Never has a snake suffered as this one did. For a while he tried to fight back. He howled, snaked, and used every means of escape. But he succumbed to the superior force of their evil power and indignantly allowed anything to be done to him.

In the beginning the brothers carried the snake around in turn. Then, after a series of howls, the eldest son moved for himself the dignity of keeper of the snake-pit.

He was Marko under his mother's nose, wrapped around his waist. He dismembered his left arm for all practical purposes and gave his mother to snarlingly told the snake by the neck.

Robby was thirteen, Tommy twelve, Jerry eleven, and Andy ten. Their father was a doctor, a renowned scientist; their mother a grained lady who was eccentric about men.

The cultured, distinguished, magnanimous parents were well versed in everything but the only thing about which they knew nothing at all was how to bring up children.

They decided their life and they were shaped them. The brothers deserved both their strange. They were bad, too, dirty, and headstrong as anything. They resembled each other in no manner manner. They were well built, muscular, tanned boys, all the four of them, and on top of their heads they were always bare. They were well dressed, like grown boys. The girls were all falling for them at school.

They had a period girl looking after them that making terrible nights told down at the house of their law-keeping parents. They hid down from sleep tonight, they were hungry, they shook up, they drove around every, they got half drowned. But nothing took them. Not even their law would get around as these adventures.

Once it happened that Tommy snatched a very pair of garden's mittens through Robby's arm. This was very serious. The brothers dropped everything and began to look after the wound. They ordered Andy to cut out the blood, which he, being the smallest, was obliged to do after various cuts from them. Andy pulled two postage stamps on the two openings of the robe. A second loss, being would have got third postage, but nothing happened to Robby. When, after an hour the stamps got dry and fell off, there was nothing on his skin except two little marks quite like his own.

Among their dark rooms belonged the tremendous that Robby enjoyed in when he sold his school books. To control the thing cut their room on fire and smothered the nothing configuration to the above. All the brothers and all their clothes which were in the room were burned to shreds. In a matter of five, it was in wonder that the whole house didn't burn down to the ground. But it was possible to state that the shrouded sheets contained the smoking and bones. These boys had won! They discovered that the best way to avoid a small room is to hang about a great disaster.

But the evening play of all their parents was the snake. When they got tired of him they decided to release him, but first they wanted to pull a stunt. They dropped him into his father's office as a leather strap chair. One of the parents, a hysterical old lady, and as the clock and put in frightened that the parent old. She was taken away by an ambulance and had to go to a hospital on account of the serious nervous attack she had suffered.

The brothers could not deny this destiny, and since the whole thing was plain they were gradually enough out to sleep over the premeditated attack of it.

The parents looked at each other in despair and they decided that it was time to get Uncle Theodore to come to their aid.

Uncle Theodore was the mother's brother. He lived in the country as a farmer. He was a great of cigarette smoker, he had a big nose, large black lips, and he weighed two hundred and forty pounds. He was a tough as old bull. He liked to hear about his physical strength and had often demonstrated how he could beat a silver soap bottle between his two fingers. He was in the habit of carrying passing knives on his shoulder.

He was the member of the family who once every year came up to the city and remained a night with them, with a thorough beating in the bedrooms for their accumulated mischief. It was necessary for

I can see him now, sitting in the chair he loved so well,
As he opened up his presents, he would grin, for he could tell
By the gleam in the package that our gift was no surprise
And he closed his happy pleasure by the twinkles in his eyes

He would fumble with the wrapper as he pulled the ribbon off
And he'd give a little chuckle and a happy little cough,
"Well, for goodness sake, it's Seagram's!"

and he'd hold the bottle up
As we gathered around the table for a friendly toast cup.

And even though that Yuletide scene goes back so long ago
It seems like only yesterday—and surely I should know
For it happens every Christmas to the years go rolling by,
We still give gifts of Seagram's, yes, for Grandma never is so

Perhaps they play on wheels, but it wouldn't be helpful. These two riders of the wooden runners made no visible knee movement as they'll be if they didn't control their skis. The first man wears a red and white design heavy wool sweater, tucked under his grey striped gilet. He wears a brown and white hooded sweater, tan pants, and a yellow peaked football scarf. The second man wears a blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The second skier wears a green and white patterned shirt with white trousers and a white peaked scarf. The third skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The fourth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The fifth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The sixth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The seventh skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The eighth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The ninth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf. The tenth skier wears a dark blue gilet, a white shirt, and a white peaked scarf.

Especially to your most beloved splashes, give Ronse Valley's Christmas and Epiphany this Christmas. Give from yourself—for these are the truly authentic American substitutes of everything the Old World grows possess. Everything, happily, but the high tech! For friends close to your heart, have your drinker pick your own Ronse Valley basket. Because these are particular favorites at Christmas, we suggest for giving—and your own festivity—

1. Ronse Valley's Blackberry Legend (750 ml.) Magnificent for the flavor of the berry, especially if it's made from our own all our Ronse Valley fruit baskets.

2. Ronse Valley's Cordon de Merlot (750 ml.) Spacious in flavor, "in-between" of the smooth, medium body, Ronse Valley's is the best thing about wine.

3. Ronse Valley's Rock and Age (750 ml.) Another in flavor, "in-between" of the smooth, medium body, Ronse Valley's is the best thing about wine.

4. Ronse Valley's Mountain Legend (750 ml.) Another in flavor, "in-between" of the smooth, medium body, Ronse Valley's is the best thing about wine.

She has not participated in weeks of a new play and there are still some pattern commitments she has to fill. Her Hollywood record is an excellent one. Among her stage credits here are "Good Night, Becket" and "The First and the Last Days." Her screen work with Goldwyn is one of the better ones in the business. It calls for her to be two persons a piece, but only if she feels like it. If she should decide to do the one person piece, her contract is automatically extended another six months. She does not get paid for the role or trouble in between.
